NUMBER 186

It is rumored at Madison that Senator Angus Cameron will enter the gubernatorial field next year.

The Republican procession in New York last night was composed of 40,000 stalwart men for Garfield.

The figures 329 denote the number of solid reasons why the people should not vote for Hancock and the Southern Confederacy.

Ballots have dropped in the boxes in Indiana today at the rate of 33,000 per hour. There is a mighty influence in the silent ballot.

The New York Tribune asks if any one has discovered anywhere a Workingmen's Hancock club. They are not the men who go into Hancock clubs.

It is said that the Marquis of Lorne otherwise Governor-General of Canada, is a duck hunter and a crack shot. It is a good thing that he can do something.

The Republicans have been bucking down to hard work in Ohio during the canvass and the leaders estimate the Republican majority for the State ticket from 10,000 to 15,000.

One of the important features of the great Republican parade in New York last night, was the appearance of fifteen hundred merchants in the procession. Among them were men who count their wealth by the millions. They are for Garfield, because in electing him there is no risk to run, and under his administration business would not suffer.

Subscriber asks the editor of the Detroit Tribune what the figures 329 refer to, to which the paper answers: "It refers to one of the notorious frauds of the South Carolina election of 1878, about which the Senate report said: 'The Supervisors at Hope Engine House, precinct, Charleston, and others testified to there being no tissue ballots visible during the day of election, but 329 were taken out of the ballot box and counted. They all seemed to lie at the bottom of the box.'"

The Republicans expect to receive encouraging news from Ohio and Indiana to-morrow morning. A Republican victory in these States to-day would give the party a firm hope of carrying Indiana in November. Ohio is certain for Garfield by a good majority, but there are more or less doubt clustering about the result in the Hoosier State. The canvass in that State has been a remarkably active one, and if the whole question of the Presidency depended solely upon the vote in Indiana, the contest could not have been more vigorous and bitter.

Mr. M. V. Pratt, of Evansville, was nominated for the Assembly by the Republican convention of the First district, on Saturday. Mr. Pratt is one of the substantial business men of Evansville. He has been a resident of that village for more than ten years, and during that time has been engaged in the mercantile business. At present he represents Evansville on the county board of supervisors. Mr. Pratt is one of those practical men who can be trusted in any position they are placed. He is a clear-headed, representative man, and will do the first district honor in the Assembly. Of course he will be elected, and will virtually have no opposition.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas, of Chicago, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday to one of the largest audiences that ever was seated in a Chicago church. He took occasion to announce some of his views and beliefs, which may astonish some of the members of the Methodist church, but they will hardly surprise those who have carefully read his sermons delivered during the past two or three years. He declines to endorse the orthodox hell and the orthodox idea of the atonement, eternal punishment, and the inspiration of the scriptures, and he gives his reasons therefor. During the delivery of the sermon there was frequent and general applause. His position is so plainly stated that it will not be necessary for the Rock River conference to investigate him. He has taken all that trouble out of his hands. The question now is what will the church do with Dr. Thomas? He is one of the foremost pulpitor of the country, and the result will be anxiously looked for.

Every man who wants to see a Solid South broken up, sectional issues eliminated from our politics, and the restoration of harmony and good feeling, will sincerely wish for a Republican victory this fall. The Republican party is not, and never was, the sectional party. It has always demanded a breaking up of sectionalism. It has demanded the free exercise of the right of suffrage in the South, and it has demanded an honest count of votes. Its aims and its purposes are to see that section prosperous and progressive, and in full harmony with the rest of the Union. This result can only be promoted by the defeat of the Democratic party. The Democracy has never shown a disposition to protect all classes of people in that section of the country. It has never attempted by either word or act, to make the interests of the North and South identical. It has never encouraged the breeding of school houses, the establishment of manufacturing, and the development of the resources of the South. It has rather encouraged the culture of politics and the breeding of sectional strife. A domination of the Bourbon Democracy in the South will continue to foster just the state of affairs.

GENERAL GRANT.

The Grand Reception and Display in New York City. New York, Oct. 11.—The Republican procession in this city this evening was remarkable in the number of legal voters in line, in the enthusiasm that animated the various organizations, in the effective uniforms worn, and in the character of men who marched with torch and lantern. It is believed that between 40,000 and 50,000 men were in line. A marked and most significant feature of the display was the presence of many prominent bankers and brokers, produce dealers and merchants, with their clerks. These were men who seldom, if ever, have taken an active part in political demonstrations, and their presence in the parade is attributed to the influence of the extensive movement among business men that has been one of the notable features of the last four weeks of the campaign here. Before 7 o'clock throngs of men and women of the better class and their children began to arrive at point along the route, and before 8 o'clock there was not an eligible place in either avenue that had not been taken. The sidewalks were densely packed with people, who overflowed into the street to such an extent as to make it very difficult for the line of parade to pass. The decorations were very numerous and brilliant. Hundreds of houses were illuminated from cellar to garret, and the city was a sea of light. The lower part of Fifth avenue from the very end, rockets and roman candles were fired, and the air was filled with the sound of the crowd. The crowd was along the entire route, and the climax was reached at about the reviewing stand, near World Monument, where it was known General Grant would appear. The entire side of Madison square, at that point, was crowded before 7:30 o'clock, while the people of the better class waited patiently until after 10 o'clock when the line of parade first passed in review by General Grant. General Grant upon his appearance was warmly received by the awaiting multitude who cheered again and again, and he received the heartiest greetings from the men in line of the parade, each organization cheering him to the echo as it passed by.

Immediately following the escort to Chief Marshal General Lloyd Aspinwall marched the Bankers and Brokers Republican club. It numbered over 4,000 men, and in the ranks were nearly all active members of the Stock Exchange. The Mining Exchange club followed the bankers and brokers, and this was followed by the Stock Brokers club. Immediately behind these marched the Philadelphia Inimitables. They numbered over 1,000 men, all of them active merchants, brokers, and bankers of Philadelphia. The several stands of colors carried by them have been in every campaign since 1860, when the club was organized.

One of the most imposing demonstrations, as far as numbers is concerned, was made by the Business Men's Association, which mustered in Broadway, south of Twenty-third street. It was divided into five companies, and in all not less than 2,000 men in the line. The line of the C. & C. employees numbered 200; Bates, Reed & Cooley's, 100; R. S. Jaffray & Co., 100; T. J. Griswold & Co., 100; Dunning, Buckley & Co., 100; Loomis Bros. & Co., 60; Halstead, Holmes & Co., 60; and Pomeroy & Plummer, 60. Large delegations came from W. & J. Sloane, H. J. Colby & Co., Wright, Bliss & Fabian, Lawson Bros., Alexander Douglas & Co., Watson & Barthold, Wilson & Bradbury, and in fact from all leading houses represented in the wholesale trade. As a whole the procession was a wonderful success, and is said to be the grandest stand at 2 o'clock, and will not fully pass, if they all go, before 3:30 or 4 o'clock.

The Presidential Election and the Business World. WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—This afternoon Wm. Copeland sent the following dispatch from New York to the Evening Star, detailing a conversation with General Grant: The General did not refer to the Fowler interview, but spoke with evident pleasure of going to Washington. He said that he would go to Boston after the parade at New York, and return in a few days to remain in New York and in Washington all winter. He will make the Fifth Avenue Hotel his home for the present. He has not yet decided when to go to Washington, but when he goes he will stay some weeks.

The following was part of the conversation: Correspondent.—It is known that you favor the election of General Garfield. What do you think would be the result of his election upon the business community?

Answer.—I believe that our people are prosperous, and nothing could say could make my opinion better known than the fact that our people are doing well. I believe that if General Garfield is elected our present prosperity will continue without interruption, and that we will advance in every branch of industry. I believe that if General Garfield is not elected all the good results of a long and hard and now successful business will be immediately checked.

Q. Do you believe then that business would suffer by a change of administration?

A. I believe most firmly that if General Garfield is elected, the change would result in a suspension of business. How long that suspension would last I cannot say, but it would last until a new administration, differing in policy from the one in power, would act.

Business people know that they expect from a change of policy of the present administration. They would not know what to expect from a one that involved a change of politics. They would be nervous from the time of the election, and business affairs would be unsettled for a long time. There would be a suspension of business, and a change of policy would be a great injury. The suspension of business in some way; not destroy, but it would rather cripple some branches of business and retard some others.

CONFIDENT. A Fair Election Secured—Talks With the Managers. INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—Both sides may be said to have squared themselves for work, and both are equally confident—at least outwardly so. The Republicans are in fine feather. One of them told me to-night, and he is a man who is near to Morton, and, in fact, grew up in politics under that far seeing teacher, that never before since Morton was elected Governor has he been so confident of success.

"What majority do you count on," I asked.

"Whatever the majority may be it will be a victory, and a big one, for Indiana, of late years has been a Democratic State. Everything is on our side, now, though, and if we have a fair election, we will beat Porter beyond all question. The majority may not be large, but it will be a majority, and one that can't be wiped out, even by the present Democratic secretary of state, who has openly boasted that he was 'the Returning Board of Indiana.' The Republican organization, as has been often stated, was never so strong as it is to-day. Morton himself was at the helm. It reaches through every one of the counties in the State, and in every one of them there is a reported gain over the vote of 1876."

George C. Gorham, who chooses the campaign motto, "Down with Democracy," might say that everything pointed to a fair and quiet election, and a Republican victory.

"What are your estimates?" I asked.

"We are making none," he replied, "though, of course, we have them for our personal guidance. Our canvass, after putting down the Democrats, is made by the local Committees. It gives a fair majority for Porter. For the first time in the history of Indiana we shall have a fair vote. A very large number of United States Marshals have been appointed, and with the supervisors of election, are being stationed in the strong Democratic counties where repeating and counting out have heretofore been the order of the day. For these and other reasons we are confident of the result."

BUSINESS MEN ALARMED. They Announce Themselves for Garfield and Arthur. MILWAUKEE, Oct. 11.—The Evening Wisconsin prints a list of prominent business men of this city who formerly belonged to the Democracy, but now support Garfield. Among them are such well-known citizens as Colonel Crocker, ex-mayor and capitalist; W. G. Pitch, banker; Emil Walber, formerly Democratic City Attorney; M. Bolden, President of the Chamber of Commerce; Joseph Bruckner, the well-known Socialist editor and lecturer; and the Irish Brothers, capitalists. These men and thousands of others like them do not wish to see the business interests of the country unsettled by the election of Hancock and the domination of the Solid South.

FATAL RESULT. WATKINSON, Oct. 11.—William Steiner, a resident of the town of Emmet, and a prominent cattle dealer, died last evening of injuries received Saturday by falling from his wagon. The deceased was 62 years of age, and a native of Germany.

THE BUSINESS NERVE. MILWAUKEE, Oct. 11.—A bet has been made in this city between a Republican and Democrat that, in case of Hancock's election, gold will be at a premium within thirty days after the fact of his election is announced.

CHICAGO GOSSIP. From our Special Correspondent. CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Lumber and coal still arrive in large quantities. The quality of the former is rather above the average, especially white and common. Much complaint is made by builders and contractors, that some of the yards, after purchasing cargoes of common at the lowest margins, assort into three or four different grades, and disposing of it as such, thereby doubling their already large profits, and cheating their patrons. Grain shipments now, fully equal the receipts, and freights are very firm and advancing. English grain dealers are now in our midst, and making contracts for future delivery at the sea board. Some New York brokers attempted to forestall their rivals, by coming on ahead and buying the market, but did not succeed until millions of bushels had been sold to our English cousins. It is thought that wheat will bring $1 a bushel or over before New Year. Our great retail dry goods and millinery stores had a quiet fall and millinery openings lately. They were crowded with ladies, and the rich and tempting display only added sorrow to many hearts—they not being able to purchase some of the articles so lovely and costly, and so much desired. Some came of their shawl were labeled $275, and others ranged all the way from $50 to $550. Beautiful suits of all styles, quality and designs, were held from $125 to $340. One of our oldermen's wives purchased a suit for $455, and an Indian shawl for $600 cash. Another bought a seal skin cloak for $225 cash, and still another an elegant suit and cloak, same as the above, paying $60 for the former article and $50 for the latter. Who would not be rich? Many children of tender years are lost on the streets of this great city almost daily. They are generally picked up by chance, and are then sent to the foundling hospital, or are given to some family to give their street or number of residence, are taken to the station and kept there and cared for, until their parents call and claim them. Over 700 youths have been restored to their homes during the past twelve months in this way. A few attempts at kidnapping have occurred, but only in one instance successful. Building operations are very active again; skilled mechanics are in great demand, and first class materials find a ready market at higher figures. Many plans given to architects have been withdrawn, on account of rise in wages and scarcity of brick and shill work. Planning mills are crowded to their utmost capacity. Irish, Swedes, Bohemians, and other nationalities are settling up the outskirts of the city very rapidly; and are erecting neat and substantial brick cottages, costing from $400 to $1,200 each, and are building being allowed to take the limits. Many business blocks will have one or two additional stories added to their height during the present fall. The proprietors of the Glucose works have decided to make their building, originally planned, will be the highest building in the city. Notwithstanding the exceptional good times that Chicago and the country at large is now experiencing, many men can be seen on the streets to-day crying "hard luck," but we generally notice such men with their hands in their pockets, and well as they are doing, and looking on all the time to see how it will "come out." If they would only roll up their sleeves and go to work with pluck and energy, it would soon come out all right. Good luck would be the immediate result. Time is too precious, and business too good, for anyone willing to work to remain idle very long. The railroad improvements in this city during the year will amount to $6,412,000. Grain elevators $800,000. Business blocks and residences $3,100,000. Churches and other buildings $740,000. Total $11,052,000. L. MOUNT.
